- 5 Step four - Share your stories

Neurodiversity Celebration Week takes place from Monday 17th March - Sunday 23rd March 2025

Founded by Siena Castellon in 2018, Neurodiversity Celebration Week is a worldwide initiative that challenges stereotypes and misconceptions about neurological differences. It aims to transform how neurodivergent individuals are perceived and supported by providing schools, universities, organisations, and others around the world with the opportunity to recognise the many skills and talents of neurodivergent individuals, while creating more inclusive and equitable cultures that celebrate differences and empower every individual.

All of the ideas in this pack are designed to help schools celebrate and take part during the week. The activities and ideas outlined are aimed at primary and secondary school audiences, and we hope you find them useful!

Step 1

Download our NCW resources

Download our free neurodiversity activity templates, PowerPoint presentation, posters and other resources.

"Choose from our wide array of posters that celebrate the talents and achievements of the neurodivergent community. Display these around your school in hallways, classrooms and even in your school newsletter!"

Ryan Gosling has ADHD?

Did you know...

Greta Thunberg is autistic?

Lewis Capaldi
has tourette's?

Whoopi Goldberg is dyslexic?

Step 2

Host an event or activity

Host a neurodiversity activity for your class. Take a look at some of our downloadable templates or create your own!

Here are some suggestions:

- Host a neurodiversity-themed assembly at your school
- Invite neurodivergent guest speakers
- Ask students to research the accomplishments of a neurodivergent individual for homework [Feel free to take a look at our poster collection for inspiration!]
- Give a classroom PowerPoint presentation on neurodiversity
- Host a neurodiversity-themed poster competition
- Create a neurodiversity wall / hallway display
- Set-up a neurodiversity-themed section in your school library, here's some great examples of it being done last year!

Free Neurodiversity Week Events

We're also hosting a range of our own free events across the week, including panel discussions with a focus on schools, parents and carers. Take a look at the events schedule here: neurodiversityweek.com/events

Step 3

Training

Arrange a neurodiversity training session for classroom teachers and school staff.

Although about 15% of all students are neurodivergent, most classroom teachers and school staff do not have the training and knowledge needed to identify and support their neurodivergent students.

Here are some suggestions:

- Your school SENCO could give a presentation to school staff
- Neurodivergent students could be invited to give a talk to their teachers and school staff about their lived-experience
- Parents of neurodivergent students could be invited to speak to teachers and school staff about how to support their children
- Teachers and staff could be encouraged to read the free resources available to download at the below link

Free Neurodiversity Week Events

We'd recommend signing up to the free neurodiversity week events. We are sure you'll find the range of panel discussions, around the topic of schools and education, insightful and inspiring. Take a look at the events schedule here: neurodiversityweek.com/events

Share your stories

Join thousands of others in sharing your Neurodiversity Celebration Week events and activities on social media.

Social Media

Become part of the neurodiversity movement and celebrate the strengths and talents of the neurodivergent community by sharing your events and activities.

Share your activity on social media using the hashtags #NeurodiversityCelebrationWeek #NeurodiversityWeek #NCW and encourage other schools to take part.
